What Adoption Professionals Say...

"I attended the AdoptTALK seminar in London and was very impressed by its organization, depth and extent of content, professional presentation and practical information. I intend to encourage all of the international adoptive families that I work with to attend in the future! The information was that valuable and readily transferable to all countries. From a practitioner's perspective (of 17 years) it was helpful to me in preparing families for this life changing experience."

Also, participants will discover the importance of establishing a support system for themselves through this transition period.

2 Health Matters

The "Health Matters" workshop will provide support and guidelines for families with infants, toddlers and preschool children. The goal of the workshop is to create awareness around the various health issues that our children will face when adopted internationally and provide resources and support for those families who need help.

3 Bonding and Attachment

"Bonding and Attachment" will provide pre-adoption support for families preparing to create their family through adoption. After attending the workshop the participants may become more aware of the issues around attachment, bonding and separation anxiety. "Make the Connection" methodology will also be used in this workshop.

4 Interracial Issues in Adoptive Families

The "Interracial Issues in Adoptive Families" workshop will provide support and strategies for families with children adopted from a different racial background. After attending the workshop, the participants will become more aware of the greater identity challenges their children will face and will be given effective strategies to assist their children with this special challenge.

5 Talking to Your Child About Adoption

The "Talking to Your Child About Adoption" workshop will provide participants with the tools and resources to support their child throughout the ages and stages of development. As well, the participants will learn the importance of networking within the adoption community and accessing post adoption services.
